Success Story: Rehabilitation of Cheek Defect after Carcinoma Using Silicone Prosthesis

This case report details the successful rehabilitation of Mr. Satish, a 58-year-old male, who sought esthetic correction for his left cheek following surgical excision of a carcinoma. The prosthodontics team at ESIC Dental College and Hospital, Rohini, New Delhi, played a crucial role in restoring Mr. Satish's facial aesthetics and overall quality of life.

Mr. Satish's primary concern was the restoration of his left cheek's esthetics after the surgical removal of carcinoma, which resulted in a significant facial defect. Mr. Satish sought care at the Prosthodontic department of ESIC Dental College and Hospital, where he was evaluated by Dr. Bhawana Tiwari (Director Professor and Head), Dr. Komal Maheshwari (Professor), and Dr. Abhishek Kumar Gupta (Assistant Professor). His surgical procedure left him with a substantial facial defect, affecting his ability to speak, chew, and causing noticeable facial asymmetry. This condition led to psychosocial distress, and Mr. Satish was determined to restore his facial aesthetics.

Upon examination, a large, irregular-shaped defect on his left cheek was noted, extending from the infraorbital region to the mandibular angle. This defect significantly impaired his oral function and caused facial asymmetry. His oral hygiene and dental status were rated as fair. Additionally, the patient had a history of tobacco use, which was considered a contributing factor to the development of the carcinoma.

To restore Mr. Satish's facial aesthetics and function, a custom-made silicone facial prosthesis was deemed the most suitable option. Impressions of the defect area were taken to create an accurate model of facial contours, which served as the foundation for the silicone prosthesis. The custom prosthesis was meticulously fabricated to match the color, texture, and contours of his natural skin and facial features. It was designed to be lightweight, durable, and comfortable for long-term wear. Medical-grade intra-oral magnets were used to secure the silicone prosthesis to the face. Multiple adjustments were made to ensure proper fit, comfort, and aesthetics. The prosthesis was designed to cover the defect, restore facial symmetry, and enable natural facial movements. Mr. Satish received comprehensive education on prosthesis care, maintenance, and hygiene to ensure its longevity and functionality.

The silicone prosthesis successfully restored Mr. Satish's facial aesthetics, resulting in a significant improvement in his quality of life and self-esteem. He no longer experienced social withdrawal or psychological distress related to his facial disfigurement.

The rehabilitation of facial defects after carcinoma using custom silicone prostheses can significantly enhance a patient's appearance, function, and psychological well-being. This case report underscores the importance of maxillofacial rehabilitation in providing comprehensive care and support to patients seeking facial reconstruction following surgical procedures for cancer removal.

Success Story: Rehabilitation of an Atrophic Eye Using Scleral Shell Prosthesis

This case report highlights the successful rehabilitation of Mr. Vijay, a 38-year-old male, who sought esthetic correction for his atrophic left eye following a traumatic incident. The prosthodontics team at ESIC Dental College and Hospital, Rohini, New Delhi, provided a comprehensive solution to address his emotional distress and aesthetic concerns.

Mr. Vijay's chief complaint was his desire for an aesthetic correction of his left eye after experiencing trauma. Mr. Vijay's case was presented to the Prosthodontics department at ESIC Dental College and Hospital, where he was evaluated by Dr. Bhawana Tiwari (Director Professor and Head), Dr. Komal Maheshwari (Professor), and Dr. Abhishek Kumar Gupta (Assistant Professor). The patient had a history of ocular trauma to his left eye, which had resulted in atrophy and cornification. This disfigurement had a significant impact on his quality of life, leading to emotional distress and aesthetic concerns.

Upon examination, Mr. Vijay's right eye was stable with normal visual acuity, while his left eye was atrophied and cornified. The absence of a natural left eye was causing him substantial psychological and social distress, affecting his self-esteem and overall well-being.

Considering Mr. Vijay's emotional distress and aesthetic concerns, a custom-made scleral shell prosthesis was chosen as the most appropriate solution to restore the appearance of his left eye. This prosthesis was meticulously crafted to match the color and size of his healthy right eye. Constructed from biocompatible material, a heat-cure acrylic resin, it was designed to rest comfortably over the atrophied left eye. The fitting process involved multiple appointments to ensure a precise fit and comfortable wear. Additionally, color matching was done to simulate the natural appearance of the right eye.

Mr. Vijay was educated on the proper care and maintenance of the scleral shell prosthesis, including cleaning and insertion procedures to ensure his comfort and safety.

The scleral shell prosthesis was successfully fitted, leading to a remarkable improvement in Mr. Vijay's quality of life. He regained his confidence in his appearance and felt comfortable participating in social activities without self-consciousness. Regular follow-up appointments ensured the stability and comfort of the prosthesis. Over time, his psychological well-being improved, and he reported feeling more content and accepting of his condition.

Rehabilitation with a custom scleral shell prosthesis can significantly enhance the quality of life for individuals who have experienced disfigurement of the eye. It is imperative for dental and maxillofacial healthcare professionals to consider the emotional and aesthetic needs of these patients and provide a holistic approach to their care. This case report demonstrates the positive impact of such rehabilitation on Mr. Vijay's life, offering hope and a renewed sense of confidence.
